Location and History

Burg Wilenstein is located west of the idyllic city Trippstadt in the heart of the Biosphere reservation park "Naturpark Pfälzer Wald". This is one of the largest forested areas in Germany.

The fortress Wilenstein is situated above the wildly romantic Karlstal Valley. It originates from the late 12th century and is made up of the two Knight houses Flörsheim and Falkenstein. Fortress Wilenstein was probably built in the year 1152 during the times of Emperor Friedrich Barbarossa. Since the Thirty Years' War only ruins remain.

In the 1960's, some students, young teachers and their Professor Dr Walter Cappel from the College of Education Kaiserslautern started a project to rebuild the Knight House Falkenstein into a leisure home mainly as a meeting place and for school excursions.

The „Burg Wilenstein Association“ was a result of this project and is running the non-profit leisure home. This group is also maintaining the fortress.
